*Transition from Understanding the Principle of Communication
To Fundamental of Communication*

To have a good understanding of Fundamental of Communication, it requires Understanding the Principle of Communication plus the prerequisite exercise for Fundamental of Communication.

In addition to that, to help us with the understanding of Fundamental of Communication from Understanding the Principle of Communication, it makes sense for us to view things in the following forms:

For instance, from Understanding the Principle of Communication we view something like this.

Communication enables us to do things. We communicate to do what we do.

In Fundamental of Communication we view the same thing like this

We do things according to what we think. We depend on what we think to do what we do.

For example from the table below we have

Understanding the Principle of Communication	Fundamental of communication
Communication enables us to do what we do	We depend on theory to do what we do
Communication enables the mechanic to fix the car	The mechanic depends on theory to fix the car
Communication drives our application	What we think drives our application
Communication dictates us	Theory dictates us
Communication drives us to do what we do	Theory drives us to do what we do

From the table above, only the following makes more sense

Understanding the Principle of Communication	Fundamental of Communication
Communication enables us to do what we do	We depend on theory do to what we do
Communication enables the mechanic to fix the car	The mechanic depends on theory to fix the car
We communicate to do what we do	We depends on our ideas to do what we do

We can also take a look of this

Understanding the Principle of Communication	Fundamental of Communication
Did not talk or specify about images in our mind when we communicate	When we communicate, we do have an image of that communication in our mind
Did not talk about image of the application	When we communicate, we do have an

in our mind	image about the application in our mind; that image drives the application, the image we have in our mind drive the application; we depend on that image to do what we do; or the application execution or the result of the application depends on that image
Since communication enables us to do what we do, in this case we can say that communication drives our application	Since theory gives us ideas to do what we do, in this case we can say that theory enables our application
Communication gives rise to what we do	Our ideas gives rise to what we do
What we do is a function of communication	What we do is a function produced by our ideas
What we do is a function produced by communication	What we do is a function produced by theory
Communication enables us to do what we do	Our ideas enable us to do what we do or we depends on our ideas to do what we do
We do things according to our communication	We do things according to our ideas
Communication enables the mechanic to fix the car	The mechanic depends on theory to fix the car
What we say or talk	What we think
The fixing of the car is related to communication of the mechanic with the customer	The fixing of the car is related to what the mechanic thinks
Our application is a function of communication	Our application is a function of our application of theory
The fixing of the car is a function of communication	The fixing of the car is a function produced by the application of theory
The fixing of the car is a function of communication	The fixing of the car is a function of time executed by the application of theory
The fixing of the car is a function of communication	The fixing of the car is a function of time produced by the application of theory
Communication enables the mechanic to fix the car	The mechanic depends on theory to fix the car

With that, we have the following diagram

The first diagram is related to Understanding the Fundamental of Communication Principle of Communication, while the second diagram is related to
