

The Speak Logic Project is a nonprofit organization that exists to promote better communication. When two people are communicating together, they do have senses that enable them to understand each other. In terms of two people who are communicating together, the model is viewed in this form

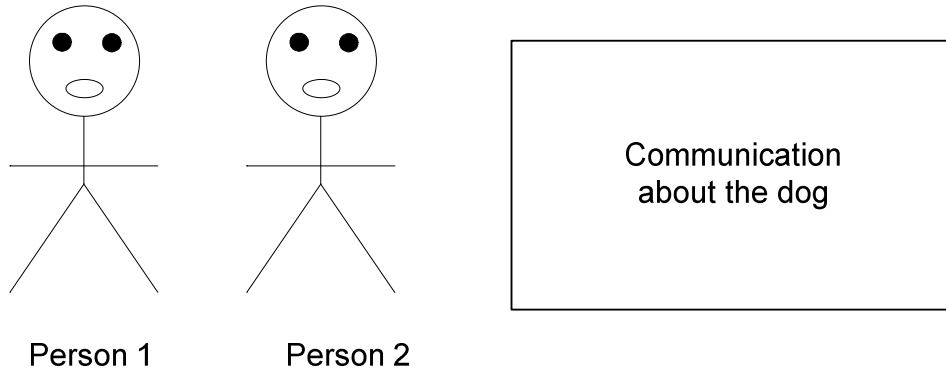

From the model above, communications flow from person 1 to person2 and from person 2 to person 1. Given that both persons do have senses that enable them to understand the underlined communication, in this case person 1 does have a sense that enables him/her to understand the communication from person 2 and person 2 also has a sense that enables him/her to understand the communication from person 1.

In term of communications that flow between both persons, it makes sense to look at that communication and what that communication is about. Let's assume that the two people identified from the diagram above are talking about a dog. In this case, the communication about the dog is what flows between the two persons. To better understand that, we can label that communication in the communication interface identified from the model above. In this case, we have the model below.

From the diagram above, it shows that the communication about the dog is what flows from person 1 to person 2 and from person 2 to person 1. Given that both people do have senses to enable them to understand the communication about the dog, by taking the communication about the dog as a separate entity that is independent from both people, in this case we have something like that.

What is important here is that the communication about an entity is a separate entity from the people who are communicating and the people who are communicating to have senses to enable them to understand that communication. Given that the people who are communicating do have senses to enable them to understand an underlined communication, there must be a logic related to their senses. While we say like that, it would have been better to say: there must be some principles that are related to their senses and the flow of the communication. Since principle, sense, and logic are related to some extents, so there is no problem here.

To facilitate the understanding of communication and to recognize the communication interface that exists between us, The Speak Logic Project exists to promote better communication. The Speak Logic Project is a nonprofit organization that exists to promote better communication with the learning and the understanding of the principle of communication.
